

Arnold PRONTOPrincipal Legal Officer, Office of Legal Affairs, United Nations

Arnold Pronto is a Principal Legal Officer in the Codification Division of the Office of Legal Affairs of the United Nations, working primarily in the field of the codification and progressive development of public international law. As a member of the Secretariat of the Sixth Committee, his activities have included working on the negotiation of several international anti-terrorism treaties, as well as the establishment of the International Criminal Court. As member of the Secretariat of the International Law Commission (since 1999), he has worked on a variety of topics, including state responsibility, the responsibility of international organizations, diplomatic protection, the effects of armed conflicts on treaties, and the protection of persons in the event of disasters. He currently leads the Secretariat teams responsible for providing substantive guidance on the provisional application of treaties, peremptory norms of general international law (jus cogens) and sea-level rise in relation to international law.

Mr. Pronto is a South African who obtained his law degrees in Johannesburg and a Masters degree at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, in Boston. He has published, given presentations and lectures, and taught, in the area of public international law and international human rights law.