

Helen Obregón Gieseke has served as Legal Adviser within the ICRC's Legal Division in Geneva since 2014. She focuses, among other issues, on the protection of the environment in situations of armed conflict. Previously, she worked for the ICRC/British Red Cross project on customary international humanitarian law. Before joining the ICRC, Helen worked for Oxfam International, TRIAL International and for the international cooperation agency of the Colombian government. Helen holds a Master of Laws (LL.M.) in International Humanitarian Law and Human Rights (Geneva Academy of International Humanitarian Law and Human Rights) and a Bachelor of Science in Foreign Service (Georgetown University, Washington, D.C.).