

US-ASEAN Cyber Dialogue

Fostering Digital Cooperation Across the Pacific

In March 2022, Columbia University's School of International and Public Affairs (SIPA), the National University of Singapore's Centre for International Law (NUS CIL), and Nanyang Technological University's S. Rajaratnam School of International Studies (NTU RSIS) will jointly initiate the US-ASEAN Cyber Dialogue to discuss the future path for improving cyber cooperation.

The US-ASEAN Dialogue is invitation-only, and brings together a focused group of policy, business and academic thought leaders interested in exchanging their individual perspectives and seeking opportunities to collaborate with their cross-Pacific counterparts.

Dialogue members will discuss topics of joint interest and cultivate working relationships among themselves across a variety of interest areas. We plan to record opening remarks, but each session will feature a closed discussion segment under Chatham House rules.
